THE yellow fever still rageth at Memphis.

FOUR Congressmen in California isn't so bad. Eh!

GENERAL GRANT is en-route for home. No mistake this time.

THE Republican convention at Saratoga was harmonious throughout.

KEARNEY having been squelched, will please take a back seat and close up his air trap.

MR. CORNELL, the Republican nominee for Governor of New York, is a match for Tilden as an organizer.

THE harvest fields of Italy will not be up to the average, and that country will make large demands on America.

A BOSTON paper having asked, "Will Democratic ascendency pay?" the Philadelphia North American replies: "Probably not. It cost this country some thousand million dollars and a million lives. It will not pay!"

THE Cincinnati Commercial says: "It is already clear the politicians throughout the State have but one opinion—that Ewing will be the worst beaten Democratic candidate in Ohio since Vallandigham." This is not a very flattering view of Ewing's prospects, anyhow.

AT the New York State Convention, which met at Saratoga, September 3d, Hon. A. B. Cornell, of New York, was nominated for Governor on first ballot. Mr. Cornell is a very popular man, and an able organizer, and he enters the campaign with bright prospects.

THE Democratic State Committee of Massachusetts has declined to accept the invitation of the Butler committee to hold a joint convention, because it does not consider the followers of Butler Democrats. This is pretty good evidence that Butler will have to "git up and dust" if he wants to secure the Democratic nomination for Governor. It will be no walk-over this year.

AS THE organ that grinds out Curtin Democracy in the Bush House cellar, was founded for the express purpose of crowding or starving out the Watchman, it would now be a matter of interest to the general public to know how far it has progressed in its particular calling. As we understand it, the editor of the Watchman still carries the chip on his shoulder in a conspicuous place, and there is not grit enough in the other side to knock it off. Come, Major, show your pluck!

IT is rumored that some of the warm supporters of the Curtin Democrat had something to do with securing the suppression of a full Republican vote in Philipsburg, and one or two other places heretofore named, for George Taylor, the Republican candidate who was on the ticket with Gregg. It is rumored that there was an abstraction of the regular Republican ticket, and a special ticket, tinctured with cheat, in the interest of the successful candidate, substituted. It is also rumored that the person who performed this species of political legerdemain was a Curtin Democrat, and supposed to be the same person who stole the Watchman's subscription list out of the Watchman office last fall. If this be so, it fully accounts for the bond of sympathy and good-fellowship existing between the Republican commissioner and the Curtin organ, or the Centre Democrat, and also accounts for the fact of the Democrat being the recipient of the Court House subsidies. Let the Democrat uphold and defend.

Impertinent Generosity.

The Watchman in its issue of the 29th ult., says: "Eminent Greenbackers tell us that the Greenback party of Centre county are for Mr. Barr, the Democratic nominee for State Treasurer. Mr. Barr is the friend of the people because he is in favor of honest money and the triple standard, gold, silver and greenbacks—each equal to the other and all convertible into each other at par. There are going to be a good many Greenback votes this fall and we are glad to join hands with them in the State campaign."

By virtue of what authority does the Watchman declare that the Greenback party of Centre county has determined to vote for the Democratic candidate for State Treasurer? We have never seen nor learned of any action upon the part of the Greenback party which committed it to the support of Barr the Democratic candidate. The reason assigned by the Watchman for their so doing is both novel and surprising. The Watchman says they are going to support Barr because he is in favor of "honest money and the triple standard, gold, silver and greenbacks, each equal to the other and all convertible into each other at par." This financial proposition is peculiar, especially the "triple standard." But it is certainly the extreme opposite of the financial theories entertained, advocated and proclaimed by the Greenbackers. If the Watchman has any authority for its assertions as to the course of the Greenbackers in Centre county, and if it is correct in assigning the reason of their agreeing to support Barr then, so far as financial principles are concerned, the Greenback party of Centre county has repudiated the principles of its own party, and accepted the very opposite, served up by the Democrats.

Has the Greenback party of Centre county been swallowed up by the Democratic party? If what the Watchman asserts be true then it has. Has the Greenback party of Centre county joined hands with the Democratic party, with all its State rights, and secession theories, and its anti-national views of our government, and with its tendencies to repudiation and free trade heresies? If what the Watchman says be true then it has. We, however, are advised that what the Watchman says is not true. That it had no authority to appropriate the Greenbackers of Centre county and gulp them down the Democratic throat, as a consideration for bestowing upon them a little bit of unsolicited fulsome flattery.

But the generosity of the Watchman in bestowing praise, and then appropriating the subject of its favorable considerations for the aggrandizement of itself or of its party, is only equaled by the impertinence with which it does it. By the time, however, that the Watchman gets the Greenback party of Centre county to adopt its triple standard of finance, join hands with the Democratic party with its secession and treasonable heresies, we imagine that both the Watchman and Barr, will be known no more in the places than they are now so well known. If the Greenbackers of Centre county are to be swallowed up by the Democratic party as claimed by the Watchman then may they be sorry for the day of their organization, and regret the day of their birth as a political party.

REPRESENTATIVES of the Smith family held a reunion at Peapick, N. J., on Wednesday of last week. There were Smiths there from all over the country, and when all were assembled, and the roll called, it was found that there were thirty-five hundred of 'em present.

NEWS comes by way of Simla, an important post in British India, that the Afghans have revolted. Twelve regiments attacked the Ameer's arsenal, and then assailed the British Embassy and set it on fire. Major Cavagnasi and the Envoy are reported killed.

Commonwealth vs. Peter Herdic.

The late trial of Peter Herdic in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Centre county having created so much interest throughout the commonwealth, concerning which many false rumors have been put in circulation, that are intended to mislead the public mind as to the real merits of the case, that we feel it incumbent us to state the facts as they actually exist, without prejudice to either party. On the 6th of March, 1877, Mr. Herdic obtained from Messrs. W. F. Reynolds & Co., bankers of this place, the sum of $8,000 less discount at the rate of ten per cent. per annum, on an acceptance of D. K. Houtz, drawn by Peter Herdic, who, in order to obtain the discount which had been refused, offered as collateral security three mortgages in favor of Peter Herdic—one for $4,500, one other for $4,500, and one for $3,000. The first two mortgages were given by Dunkle and Eberly, and were represented by Herdic as being the first and only lien on the property. Upon the faith of these representations Messrs. Reynolds & Co. loaned Herdic the money.

These allegations were denied by Mr. Herdic, and it was shown that Messrs. Reynolds & Co., knew nothing a out the mortgages except what Herdic said, who believed his representations to be true.

On the 5th of January, 1870, Herdic had made a mortgage on the same premises, to one James Rothwell, of R. I., to secure $40,400, which was a prior lean to the Dunkle and Eberly mortgages. This Herdic certainly knew at the time he made the representations to Messrs. Reynolds & Co., and secured the money for the reason that, but a short time before, he had the lien of the Rothwell mortgage discharged or released in the mortgage—the Jones lot also at the time he made the representations, and a short time after, Herdic had paid the interest on the Rothwell mortgage. All these facts were proven in the trial.

Herdic himself, in a suit on the Rothwell mortgage in Williamsport during the present year, swore that he had paid the interest on the Rothwell mortgage for six or seven years.

When called on the stand at the late trial, Herdic swore he had forgotten the Rothwell mortgage and did not know it was on this land. Herdic's agent obtained certificates from the Recorder of Lycoming county, stating that there were no liens on the property except the Kunkle and Eberly mortgages, and these Herdic produced to Messrs. Reynolds & Co. He also represented to Messrs. Reynolds & Co. that Dunkle and Eberly had paid $1,500 each on these lots, as part of the purchase money; that he had sold the lots for $6,000 a piece, leaving $4,500 due as purchase money. Dunkle and Eberly both swore on the stand that they had not paid one cent, and that it was not intended as a purchase—that Herdic said they need never pay it.

The case clearly showed all the pretenses to be false. When the jury retired, they stood six for acquittal and six for conviction; but they remained out all night and returned a verdict the next morning "of not guilty," and that the defendant, Peter Herdic, pay the costs of prosecution. This verdict may be termed a compromise verdict, and virtually indicates that the jury considered him guilty, but hadn't the moral courage to say so, owing to the outside clamor gotten up in the interest of the defendant, expressly for the purpose of preventing a conviction, no matter what the facts were in the case. It is becoming too common for juries to lay aside the law and the evidences, as laid down by the courts, in the trials of causes, and decide the same in accordance with their prejudices.

During late years there is a feeling abroad, brought about by communism and socialism, that no matter how industrious or economical man has been, who has accumulated wealth, he is not entitled to a fair or unbiased consideration at the hands of his fellow-citizens, if he should be fleeced of a share of his accumulated earnings at the hands of unscrupulous sharpers. This verdict is nothing less than an outcrop of the above sentiments, which, if encouraged, will lead to robbery and ruin, and a man of means will have no security that his property is safe at the hands of his neighbors.

CAPT. JOHN A. HUNTER, the reported Greenback candidate for Jury Commissioner, has always been a very strenuous Democrat. During the dark days of the rebellion, his expressed sentiments and actions were scarcely in harmony and sympathy with the Union soldiers and the efforts of the Government for self preservation. He also did not hesitate last fall upon the eve of the election to repudiate and renounce his Greenback affiliations, and declared that he was "as good a Democrat as ever he was" and supported the Democratic State ticket last fall. How he happened to be nominated for Jury Commissioner by the Greenbackers, is a query. Was it because the Court wing of the Democracy honored him with the position of Foreman of the Grand Jury at last term of Court? Or was it for the purpose of leading the Greenbackers to support Barr the Democratic candidate for State Treasurer, as the Watchman claims they intend doing? Is poor Sutton the Greenback candidate for State Treasurer to be Huntered and Barred out of Centre county in this manner?

WASHINGTON.

Special Correspondent.

Sept. 4, 1879.

The New York Republican State Convention yesterday did its work promptly, harmoniously and well, and adjourned in the best of feeling. The candidates and platform are unexceptionable, and the success of the Republican party in New York is assured. Hon. A. B. Cornell was nominated for Governor on the first ballot, and the nomination was made unanimous amidst great enthusiasm. All the other candidates on the State ticket were nominated without delay, a second ballot not being necessary in any case. The platform sets forth plainly the Republican view of the issues of the current canvass, leaving nothing to be misunderstood. The country now knows that the Republicans of New York will, as one man, maintain that our country is one nation, and oppose that nefarious doctrine of State sovereignty, which is the parent of nearly all our national ills; that it will maintain free and fair elections, and overturn that rule of armed mobs that has made elections in six States operations that would be farces, were it not for the bloody criminality of the means used to make them expressions of the armed few, instead of the law-abiding many. The hopes of the enemy that divisions would arise, that would weaken the power of the Republican party, have fallen to the ground, and their hope of putting the government of New York, State and city, again into the hands of the plunderers of the Democratic party, who have made themselves famous by their iniquities in New York, now to calculate that an overwhelming triumph of the Presidential and Congressional elections next year will save our country from the machinations, conspiracies and rule of State rights Democrats in the North, and traitors and savages in the South.

There is every indication that Washington, within a year, will have as fine fair grounds and race course as are in the country. The whole city has taken up the subject.

Republican Victories.

CALIFORNIA.

The State election was held in California on last Monday, and the Republicans won a splendid victory by electing their candidate for Governor and four Congressmen, the entire delegation from the golden State and many other minor offices.

MAINE.

A State election was also held in Maine, on Monday, in which the Republicans have gained a decided victory on the vote of last year. The vote polled was the largest ever cast. Last year the Republicans had 56,519, the Greenback candidate 41,404, the Democrats 27,872, making an aggregate of 125,795. Both branches of the Legislature were carried by the fusionists. Monday's election shows that our friends there have come up to Blaine's figures and gave Davis, Republican for Governor, 70,000 votes in round numbers, Smith, Greenback, 50,000 and Garcelow, Democrat, 18,000, making a total of 138,000 votes. The Republicans have thus triumphed over all, electing a large majority of the Legislature.

The following dispatch from Senator Blaine will be read with interest, although the above gives the latest news received:

AUGUSTA, Sept. 8—Midnight.—Senator Blaine has just sent the following dispatch to Senator Allison, of Iowa:

Hon. William B. Allison, Dubuque, Iowa: The result of to-day's election may be briefly summed up thus: We have carried a large majority of the House of Representatives and a majority of the State apparently, though not certainly. We have given our candidate for Governor a plurality of more than 20,000 votes over the Greenback candidate and 40,000 over the Democratic candidate. Whether we have given him an absolute majority over both will only be determined by further returns, and possibly by the official count. On joint ballot in the Legislature we shall have a large majority, thus controlling the Executive Council and the selection of all State officers. The majority against us last year was over 13,000, equivalent to 60,000 majority in Illinois, to 80,000 in Pennsylvania, or to 100,000 in New York. To overcome this enormous majority in an off year, with no general election pending, was, of course, a difficult task, and our Republicans feel that they have made a splendid fight and with most gratifying results. JAMES B. BLAINE.

THE LATEST—GLORIOUS VICTORY.

The lower house of Maine, 87 Republicans, 64 opposition. Senate, 18 Republican, 13 opposition. Not certain as to Davis' election by the people, but the Senate elects if the people have not decided by giving him a majority.

The Rev. Leonard Bacon, of Norwich, was defeated in his attempt to secure the enforcement of the old Connecticut Sunday law of 1702, which provides a fine for any unnecessary travel on the Sabbath. He made a strong address in favor of stopping the Sunday steamboat trips, but the city attorney sensibly decided that it was not to the interest of the city, civil or religious, to use coercive measures in dealing with the Sunday question, and he declined to prosecute.

Two sons of the Siamese twins, Chang and Eng, are now living in Summer county, Kansas. They recently appeared in the United States land office, at Wichita, in a contest in which one of them was a defendant and the other was a witness. They are spoken of as intelligent, wide-awake citizens, and fully up to the spirit of the times.

The great balloon, the Pioneer, at Manhattan Beach, while making an ascension yesterday afternoon, burst when it was four feet from the ground. The gas rushed out, almost suffocating those in the amphitheatre, and the netting fell down over the basket, which dropped to the ground. The balloon cost several thousand dollars.

When he got there, he turned it over the bung, and it ran into the barrel where all the other farmers had poured their milk. Now, what do you think was the result? Why, every one of the six farmers happened to be mean as Jake. They all brought water."

Miscellaneous.

Gen. Grant Abroad.

A lord in waiting, heavily braided, with a uniform that Louis XIV would not have disliked in Versailles, comes softly in and makes a signal, leading the way. The General and Mrs. Grant, escorted by Mr. Bingham and our retinue, followed. The General and Minister were in evening dress. The naval officers were in full uniform, Colonel Grant wearing the uniform of lieutenant-colonel. We walk along a short distance and enter another room, at the further end of which were standing the Emperor and Empress. Two ladies in waiting were near them in a sitting, what appeared to be a crouching attitude. Two other princesses were standing. They were the only occupants of the room. Our party slowly advanced, the Japanese making obeisance, bending the head almost to a right angle with the body. The royal princes formed in a line near the Emperor, along with the princesses. The Emperor stood quite motionless, apparently unobservant or unconscious of the homage that was paid him. He is a young man with a slender figure, taller than the average Japanese and of about the middle height, to our ideas. He has a striking face, with a mouth and lips that remind you something of the traditional mouth of the Hapsburg family. The forehead is full and narrow, the hair and the light mustache and beard intensely black. The color of the hair darkens what might otherwise pass for a swarthy countenance at home. The face expresses no feeling whatever, and but for the glowing eye, which was bent full upon the General, you might have taken the imperial group for statues. The Empress, at his side, wore a Japanese costume, rich and plain. Her face was very white, her form slender and almost childlike. Her hair was combed plainly and braided with a gold arrow. The Emperor and Empress have agreeable faces, the Emperor especially showing firmness and kindness. The solemn etiquette that pervaded the audience chamber was peculiar, and might appear strange to those familiar with the stately but cordial manners of a European Court. But one must remember that the Emperor holds so high and so sacred a place in the traditions, the religion and the political system of Japan that even the ceremony of to-day is so far in advance of anything of the kind ever known in Japan that it might be called a revolution. The Emperor, for instance, as our group was formed advanced and shook hands with the General.

That seems a trivial thing to write about, but such an incident was never known in the history of Japanese majesty. Many of these details may appear small, but we are in the presence of an old and romantic civilization, slowly giving way to the fierce feverish pressure of European ideas, and you can only note the change in those incidents which would be unnoticed in other lands. The incident of the Emperor of Japan advancing toward General Grant and shaking hands becomes a historic event of consequence, and as such I note it. The manner of the Emperor was constrained, almost awkward, the manner of a man doing a thing for the first time, and trying to do it as well as possible. After he had shaken hands with the General he returned to his place, and stood with his hand resting on his sword, looking on at the brilliant, embroidered, gilded company as though unconscious of their presence. Mr. Bingham advanced and bowed, and received just the faintest nod in recognition. The other members of the party were each presented by the Minister, and each one standing about a dozen feet from the Emperor stood and bowed. Then the General and Mrs. Grant were presented to the princess, each party bowing to the other in silence. The Emperor then made a signal to one of the noblemen, who advanced. The Emperor spoke to him for a few moments in a low tone, the nobleman standing with bowed head. When the Emperor had finished, the nobleman advanced to the General and said he was commanded by His Majesty to read the following address:

"Your name has been known to us for a long time, and we are highly gratified to see you. While holding the high office of President of the United States, you extended toward our countrymen especial kindness and courtesy. When our Ambassador, Iwakura, visited the United States, he received the greatest kindness from you. The kindness thus shown by you has always been remembered by us. In your travels around the world you have reached this country, and our people of all classes feel gratified and happy to receive you. We trust that during your sojourn in our land you may find much to enjoy. It gives me sincere pleasure to receive you, and we are especially gratified that we have been able to do on the anniversary of American independence. We congratulate you, also, on the occasion."

This address was read in English. At its close General Grant said:

"Your Majesty—I am very grateful for the welcome you accorded me here to-day, and for the great kindness with which I have been received, ever since I came to Japan, by your government and your people. I recognize in this a feeling of friendship toward my country. I can assure you that this feeling is reciprocated by the United States; that our people without regard to party, take the deepest interest in all that concerns Japan, and have the warmest wishes for her welfare. I am happy to be able to express that sentiment. America is your next neighbor, and will always give Japan sympathy and support in her efforts to advance. I again thank Your Majesty for your hospitality, and wish you a long and happy reign, and for your people prosperity and independence."

At the conclusion of this address, which was extempore, the lord advanced and translated it to His Majesty. Then the Emperor made a sign and said a few words to the nobleman. He came to the side of Mrs. Grant and said the Empress had commanded him to translate the following address:

"I congratulate you upon your safe arrival after your long journey. I presume you have seen very many interesting places. I fear you will find many things uncomfortable here, because the customs of the country are so different from other countries. I hope you will prolong your stay in Japan, and that the present warm days may occasion you no inconvenience."

Mrs. Grant, pausing a moment, said in a low, conversational tone of voice, with animation and feeling:

"I thank you very much. I have visited many countries, and have seen many beautiful places, but I have seen none so beautiful or so charming as Japan."

John Brown's Capture.

Colonel R. E. Lee having arrived, took command of the place, and posting his force of marines near the engine house which stood, and still stands just within the gate opening on the grounds, prepared to attack the raiders in their improvised fort. Owing to the natural confusion and the absence of thorough organization the militia, who had hastened in from the neighboring counties, had not made a regular assault. It was about night when Brown took refuge in the engine house, and while the officers of the militia were consulting upon the best means of attacking the place, Col. Lee, with the United States troops, made his appearance and assumed the direction of everything. About sunrise—which takes place at this season of the year a little after six o'clock—the marines were ready to attack the engine house; but Colonel Lee first, in accordance with his orders, sent Brown a summons to surrender. This summons was carried by Lieutenant J. E. B. Stewart, who thus made his appearance as a prominent actor in what may be called the first scene of the first act of the civil war, where he filled so great a space in the public eye as commander of General Lee's cavalry. Stewart walked toward the engine house waving a white handkerchief, and when he reached the door called out that he wished to speak with "Captain Smith." This was the name assumed by Brown when he reached the farm-house in Maryland as a rendezvous for his party, and the only name by which he was known up to this moment. In response to Stewart's call one of the folding doors of the engine house was partially opened, and Brown's face and part of his figure appeared in the opening. He held a carbine in one hand, and a fierce bull-dog pushed his muzzle through the open space and growled at the intruder. Across the doors within was stretched a strong rope, no doubt intended to protect the doors from being battered in—a better protection than an ordinary bar, as it would yield, but would not give way.

As soon as Stewart saw Brown he recognized him. They had either been acquainted or Stewart had seen him in the West, where he was well known as "Ossawattomie Brown," from the resolute stand he had made at that place about three years before this time against General Lane—repulsing a largely superior force and effecting his retreat in safety. Finding that "Captain Smith" was the famous freesoil fighter in person, Stewart's first words were:

"You are Ossawattomie Brown, of Kansas."

Brown looked at him keenly for an instant from under his shaggy, gray eyebrows, and then said coolly, addressing Stewart by the title which his uniform indicated:

"Well, they do call me that sometimes, Lieutenant."

"I thought I remembered meeting you in Kansas," Stewort said. "This is a bad business you are engaged in, Captain. The United States troops have arrived and I am sent to demand your surrender."

"Upon what terms," asked Brown, without any exhibition of emotion, and speaking in a matter-of-fact tone, as if he were engaged in the transaction of an ordinary piece of business—a tone which General Stewart informed me he preserved during their entire interview.

"The terms are." Stewart replied, "that you shall surrender to the officer commanding the troops, and he will protect you and your men from the crowd and guarantee you a fair trial by the civil authorities."

Brown shook his head, and the bull-dog, whose muzzle protruded beneath—close to Stewart's knee—uttered a fierce growl, as if no better pleased than his master.

"I can't surrender on such terms," Brown replied. "You must allow me to leave this engine house with my comrades and the prisoners and march across to the Maryland side. There I will release the prisoners, and, as soon as this is done, you and your troops may fire on us and pursue us."

"I have no authority to agree to such an arrangement," Stewart said. "My orders are to demand your surrender on the terms I have stated."

"Well, Lieutenant," Brown returned, as quietly as before, "I see we can't agree. You have the numbers on me, but you know we soldiers are not afraid of death. I would as leave die by the bullet as on the gallows."

"Is that your final answer, captain," Stuart said.

"Yes," replied Brown.

And this closed the interview, which I have given in nearly, if not quite, the exact words of Gen. Stewart. The expressions used by Brown, have been, I think, recorded with precise accuracy. Some of these impressed me as peculiarly characteristic of the man; among others, the words, "we soldiers" and "I would as leave die by the bullet as on the gallows." The former seems to indicate that he associated Stewart and himself together as miltary men, who were not apt to be frightened at the prospect of approaching death, and the latter phrase showed that he realized what would be his fate if he surrendered unconditionally—between a bullet and the gallows there was little, if any, choice.

Stewart having returned to Colonel Lee and reported Brown's reply to the summons, orders were given to prepare for an attack on the engine house, which was made a little after sunrise. A long ladder was obtained and used as a battering ram by the marines. A line manned it on both sides and it was driven against the door in the midst of a hot fire from Brown and his men through the loop-holes. The fire was fatal to one or two of the marines, but the door was driven in, and Lieutenant Israel Greene, who led the attack, cut Brown on the head with his sword, and he fell. Many erroneous statements afterward appeared as to the particular manner in which Brown was disabled; but this is a correct account derived from Lieut. Greene. He informed me, I think, that the weapon used was a small dress-sword, and that the whole affair took place in a moment. I will add that any statement made by a person as high-toned and unassuming as Major Greene is entitled to implicit faith. The other members of the party were soon cut down and captured and the prisoners released from their long confinement, to the great joy of their friends, who crowded around to congratulate them. Brown and his companions were placed under guard, and with this ended the first act of the remarkable drama.

Avarice Outwitted.

The case of John Eyre, Esq., who, though worth upward of $150,000, was convicted at the Old Bailey and sentenced to transportation for stealing eleven quires of common writing paper, was rendered more memorable by the opportunity which it gave Junious to impeach the integrity of Lord Mansfield, who was supposed to have erred in admitting him to bail. An anecdote is related of Mr. Eyre which shows the natural depravity of the human heart; and it may account for the meanness of the crime for which he stood convicted. An uncle of his, a gentleman of considerable property, made his will in favor of a clergyman, who was his intimate friend, and committed it, unknown to the rest of the family, to the divine. However, not long before his death, having altered his mind with regard to the disposal of his wealth, he made another will in which he left the clergyman only $2,500, and leaving the bulk of his quite large fortune to go to his nephew and heir-at-law, Mr. Eyre. Soon after the old gentleman's death, Mr. Eyre, rummaging over his drawers, found this last will, and perceiving in it the legacy of $2,500 for clergyman, without any hesitation or scruple of conscience, put it in the fire and took posession of the whole effects, in consequence of his uncle being supposed to have died intestate. The clergyman coming to town soon after, and enquiring into the circumstances of his old friend's death, he asked if he had made any will before he died. On being answered by Mr. Eyre in the negative, the clergyman cooly put his hand in his pocket and pulled out the former will which had been committed to his care, in which Mr. Eyre had bequeathed to him the whole of his fortune, amounting to several thousand dollars, excepting a legacy of $2,500 to his nephew.

A Compositor Discharged.

There was a compositor not only discharged from the San Jose, Cal., Herald the other day, but also fired down four flights of stairs by the infuriated foreman of that admirable journal. It seems that the typo was requested to liven up a certain speech delivered at the Workingmen's State Convention held in that town, with the usual remarks in parenthesis. The "jour," who was carrying a little more beer than was necessary, just then got hold of the wrong proceedings, causing the eloquent resolutions of Mr. Van Arsian, referring to the death of a member, to read something like this: Whereas, it has pleased Divine Providence to remove from our midst our beloved comrade Azariah McMuck [loud applause], who has been cut off in the flower of his usefulness [laughter] and promise, it is Resolved, That we tender to his bereaved family [cheers] and friends our sincere sympathy in this their hour of affliction [cries of "Put him out," and "Order"], and assure them while we humbly bow to the will of [a voice, "Three cheers for Kearney"] Heaven, lament our departed brother [roars of laughter], a fellow-citizen of enlightened mind, statesmanlike views [cries of "Oh, shut up! Let's adjourn!"] and broad and generous sympathy for his kind. [Terrific cheers.] He is not lost, but gone before [derisive cries of "Oh, cheese it," and continued laughter], etc. In fact, the McMuck widow is hunting for that unfortunate printer yet, and cherishes the conviction that he is still hiding in the hills.

During November it is expected that 100,000 colored people will leave the Southern States for the West.

Captian Daniel Dodson and family of Petersburg, Va., were recently poisoned by eating ice cream.

Success in Life.

Many men fail in life because of infirmity of purpose. They resolve well, but they have not the courage to realize their convictions. One would like to be a great lawyer, but he cannot undergo the hard training and the life of self-denial that is necessary to such distinction. Another aspires to be a successful merchant, but he is unwilling to deprive himself of luxuries, to live according to his means and to lay the foundation of future affluence in methodical habits of thrift and economy. The mechanic who sighs to better his condition is disinclined to the scientific studies that inform and enlarge the mind. There are men of literary genius who accomplish nothing of permanent value because they engage in too many undertakings at the same time, that divide their attention and prevent them from concentrating their powers on one subject. There are others, and of real talent, who seem to have no power of doing anything but at the suggestion and under the encouragement of others. It is a strange fact that the most censorious of satirists have been the most sensitive of men, and that some of the most successful of writers, in every department of literature, would have shrunk from submitting their writings to the public eye but for the stimulating commendation of friends. Another instance, this, of how much we depend on others for a just estimate of ourselves, and how necessary friendship is to enable us to confront a frowning world. There are, to be sure, men of such an iron temper that they are indifferent to public opinion, and single-handed brave the most formidable opposition. Individuals of this sort are rare. They are the quality of which religious and political martyrs are made, they are the reformers who have been burnt at the stake for their advanced ideas, or have attested their love of liberty and progress by heroic deaths on the battlefield. They are the iron-heeled conquerors who ride rough-shod over all who stand in their way. In general, a man succeeds best when he has the co-operation of sympathizing friends.

The voyage of life is like a voyage at sea. The objective point must always be kept in mind. The mariner who leaves the New World for some distant port on the shores of Europe or Africa steers steadily on the course that leads to his destination. He may be blown out of direct route by adverse gales for a time, but when the tempest is over he puts his vessel on the right track and sails onward until he reaches the haven he has long sought thro' storm and calm and the vicissitudes of navigation. So it is with human life. They who embark on it and hope to achieve anything beneficial to themselves or their species must first be masters of themselves; they must estimate aright their own powers and their capacity for the peculiar pursuit which they prefer. That settled, without undue deference to others and without undue exaggeration of their own merits, and inspired by a proper degree of self-confidence, persevering through good and ill fortune, buoyed up by hope and the determination to win, they will in the end gain the cherished object of their aspirations. If, however, they sink under the repellant storms they may encounter and flee back into port, the whole tide of life is turned away, and they have to recommence the struggle which, with a little perseverance, would have been already terminated. Some are affrighted at the slightest breath of censure, and lose heart to such a degree when hurtling blasts of envy and malice assail them that they cannot go on. Such are not made to battle with the passions of the world. Their province is the retired paths of life, where men walk unseen, unobserved and uncared for. He who engages in active pursuits on the broad theatre of the world must not expect to lead a life of luxurious repose. On the contrary, he must be prepared to fight his way, and to assert his right to success by force of superior prowess and might. No matter the sphere or vocation, no one can realize fame, success or fortune without undeviating persistence, energy, courage and the concentration of all the powers of the mind on the object he has in view.—Phil'a Press.

A Smart Wife.

The other morning a citizen called at a hardware store on Woodward avenue and said he wanted a key to a certain door in his house, and he took up and carried away almost the first key handed out to him. On his way down town after dinner he stopped and exchanged the key for another, explaining that the first wouldn't fit. These changes took place twice a day for the next four days, the citizen being unable to get hold of a key that would fit. On the sixth day he drove up to the store with a door on a dray, and calling to the proprietor he said:

"Bring your box of keys out here and we'll get a fit to that lock. Here I have been running back and forth about a week, and I might not have got a fit for a whole month if my wife had not suggested that I bring the door down here. Some of these women are mighty smart."

"But why didn't you take the lock off and bring it down in your pocket?" asked the dealer.

The buyer looked at him in a vacant way, stared hard at the door, and sat down on the curbstone with the remark:

"It's a wonder that the whole family wasn't sent to the fool-house ten years ago!"—Free Press.

How an Outlaw was Caught.

A letter from Columbus, Neb., gives the particulars of the capture of "Doc" Middleton, the notorious outlaw. Soldiers, under Detective Llewellyn, from Fort Hartsuff, and a party of citizens from Grand Island, arrived at Niobrara river by different routes, about the same time. The party proceeded immediately to the house of Middleton's father-in-law, where they captured him and five other persons. The old gentlemen was given the choice of leading the party to Middleton's hiding place or of being hanged. With tears falling down his face, the unhappy parent led the party, consisting of fourteen mounted men, into the hills of the northwest. Proceeding about seven miles, the head of a deep canon was reached. Large pine trees filled the gorges of the canon from the deep recesses of which no sound came to indicate that the brigand chief was hidden there. The soldiers were quietly picketed on commanding points. Richardson, Middleton's father-in-law refused to enter the canon, saying the outlaws would shoot him if they saw him guiding the soldiers. The party entered through different defiles that led to the main canon. In a short time the camp was discovered. The stillness was soon broken by the ring of the rifles. Mrs. Middleton, who was in the camp, screamed for a cessation of hostilities. She came up to the sheriffs of Hall and Howard counties, who told her to go back and tell her husband to surrender. She went back, and soon returned, saying that "Doc" would not give himself up. Some men worked their way cautiously into the camp, and it was found to be deserted. The outlaws had fled. Middleton was discovered crawling through the grass, and in a moment a ball came near ending his life. He begged for quarters, and was taken with arms on. He said he was shot by Detective Hazen with a Winchester the Sunday before. The wound only temporarily disabled him. He was at once taken to the top hills, and thence to the main camp, near his fathers house, south of the river. The camp of the outlaws contained fruit, sugar, ammunition, bedding, powder, canned goods and endless knickknacks. The tents were piled up and burned.

Locomotives' Speed.

The New York Sun publishes an interesting statement from an old engineer, named Fraser, which upsets some of the usually received notions of the speed of locomotives. He was asked if the train was not then going nearly a mile a minute. "A mile a minute!" said Fraser. "I doubt if you ever rode a mile in a minute. Few locomotives have driving wheels over five feet, and I have my doubts if a five foot wheel can be pushed a mile a minute. People have a very erroneous idea of the speed of railway trains. We are not going now more than thirty-five miles an hour, and this is very fast. Few trains make this speed. The passengers in the cars would think we were going a mile a minute sure, if I was to pull out the throttle so as to send her forty miles an hour. No man could stand on a platform car, and face the wind going a mile a minute and live. The breath would actually be blown out of his body. You couldn't count the telegraph poles going a mile a minute. Talk to an old engineer of that rate being made by a passenger train and he would laugh. I made a mile a minute once, however. It was when I was but eighteen years of age. I was an engineer then, in charge of a fine six-foot wheel engine. There were a lot of railroad moguls on board, and the object was to make the best time we could. They were to ring the gong when the speed was a mile a minute. I thought we were making it for some time before the bell rang. At length on a down grade, with a full head of steam, when we were spinning along as if we were all going to destruction, and the motion of the piston going over the centre could no longer be distinguished, the bell rang. We had reached the rate of a mile a minute. It was the fastest I ever rode before or since. When you hear a man telling about riding in a passenger train that ran a mile a minute, don't say anything, but mentally scratch off a good allowance."

Recently a special Treasury agent in Ogden, Utah, seized a car loaded with goods in bond on suspicion of fraud, and upon examination found that the contents were all right, except that he found therein two tramps who were stealing a ride to San Fransancisco. They had gained an entrance by forcing open a ventilating door, and did not break the seals of the custom-house officials, New York.

The Charge d'Affaires of Peru at New York says no credit should be given to the intimation in this country to the effect that the country is recruiting its forces by the employment of cannibal savages, armed with poisoned arrows.

In consequence of the active American demand, every large iron making district in England is showing unmistakable signs of a revival in the iron production of that kingdom.

St. Louis police authorities have notified the proprietors of gambling houses to close up, and they will close, the new law being very strict.

Jacob Helwig, a German, died in Philadelphia, yesterday, from starvation, and a coroner's jury rendered a verdict to that effect.

The Way Birds Arrange It.

Mr. Editor:—

Whether or not our feathered friends have communistic ideas with regard to labor, yet it would seem they believe in equalizing the family cares, and the domestic economy is quite up to ideal of the most extreme woman's rightists. We take this inference from a case that recently came under our notice which, though students of natural history may be well acquainted with the fact, may be of interest to many, who are not learned in that science:

A couple of common yellow birds made their nest in a fruit tree in the yard of one of our townsmen, and in time reared a brood of four. Before the little birds could fly much, they were, by some mishap, thrown from the nest. The little children picked them up, and, placing them in a bird cage, hung it among the vines surrounding the porch. Here the two parent birds came and fed them through the wires of the cage, and the four inmates of the prison thrived and grew, notwithstanding their confinement. The old birds became quite tame, by coming to the house, and one day the male venturing too near was caught and made to share the imprisonment of his children. He seemed not to mind it much, but the effect was soon seen on two of the little ones. They immediately began to droop and soon died. But trying to account for it, the family came to the conclusion that it was the want of properly prepared food, which came about in this way: The old birds had divided up the family cares, each taking two to attend. By watching it was seen that the male always fed two particular ones, and the female did the same, never exchanging. When the male was confined, it was thought, the female would take the whole family under her care, but never once did she attempt it. Either for want of maternal instincts, or from adherence to old habits, she sturdily refused to supply the wants of the other two, and rather than do what she considered to be her husband's duty, she let her two, or rather his two children, go by the board. The two under her care are alive and growing nicely. Whether this is the habit of birds in general or only a notion of this particular pair, we do not know. At any rate, it appears to us, quite a novel family arrangement.

A Hotel with a Million Rooms.

For the benefit of those unacquainted with the term "dugout," as used in the far West, says the New York Hotel Gazette, it may be proper here to state that in the early days of Kansas it was customary, owing to the scarcity of timber, for the poorer class of settlers to make their houses in the ground, generally on the side of a hill or slope, if their claim afforded such. This statement may at first thought seem absurd, but it is a fact well known to those who have traveled through the West. Intelligent and well educated people, who from one cause or another in ideal to a lifetime had become reduced in circumstances, were not unfrequently met with living in these "dugouts," with as much comfort and ease as many of their former associates in much costlier homes in the East. Much depended on the muscle, ingenuity and taste of the builder whether his home looked like a wood-chuck hole or a human habitation.

In one of these "dugouts" a certain wealthy hotel proprietor in Kansas first commenced business as a caterer to the public. His patrons were cattle herders, Mexican "greasers" and railroad laborers, who were content with the simple fare he set before them. His hotel contained two rooms, the "dugout" and the "boundless prairie." In the former was kept the cooking utensils, stove, etc., and the latter served as his bedrooms. "I have a million rooms," he would say, "room enough for the whole world, and plenty to eat as long as the buffalo deer last." His customers, though of a rough class, paid their bills promptly, which enabled him in a few months to lay the foundation of quite a respectable hotel. A thriving town grew up around him, and, as money continued to come in, he made additions and added new attractions, till today he enjoys the patronage of as fine a class of travelers as visit the West.

Is a compound of the virtues of sarsaparilla, stillingia, mandrake, yellow dock, with the iodide of potash and iron, all powerful blood-making, blood-cleansing, and life-sustaining elements. It is the purest, safest, and in every way the most effectual alterative medicine known or available to the public. The sciences of medicine and chemistry have never produced so valuable a remedy, nor one so potent to cure all diseases resulting from impure blood. It cures Scrofula, and all scrofulous diseases, Erysipelas, Rose, or St. Anthony's Fire, Pimples and Face-grubs, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter, Humors, Salt Rheum, Scald-head, Ringworm, Ulcers, Sores, Rheumatism, Mercurial Disease, Neuralgia, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, Jaundice, Affections of the Liver, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, and General Debility.

By its searching and cleansing qualities it purges out the foul corruptions which contaminate the blood, and cause derangement and decay. It stimulates and enlivens the vital functions. It promotes energy and strength. It restores and preserves health. It infuses new life and vigor throughout the whole system. No sufferer from any disease which arises from impurity of the blood need despair, who will give AYER'S SARSAPARILLA a fair trial. Remember, the earlier the trial, the speedier the cure.

Its recipe has been furnished to physicians everywhere; and they, recognizing its superior qualities, administer it in their practice.

For nearly forty years AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has been widely used, and it now possesses the confidence of millions of people who have experienced benefits from its marvellous curative virtues.

DYSPEPSIA. DYSPEPSIA. DYSPEPSIA.

Dyspepsia is the most perplexing of all human ailments. Its symptoms are almost infinite in their variety, and the forlorn and despondent victims of the disease often fancy themselves the prey, in turn, of every known malady. This is due, in part to the close sympathy which exists between the stomach and brain, and in part, also, to the fact that any disturbance of the digestive function necessarily disorders the liver, the bowels and the nervous system, and effects, to some extent, the quality of the blood.

E. F. Kunkel's Bitter Wine of Iron is a sure cure. This is not a new preparation, to be tried and found wanting; it has been prescribed for many years in the practice of eminent physicians with unparalelled success; it is not expected to cure all the diseases to which the human family is subject, but is warranted to cure Dyspepsia in its most obstinate form. Kunkel's Bitter Wine of Iron never fails to cure. Symptoms of Dyspepsia are loss of appetite, wind and rising of food, dryness of the mouth, heartburn, distension of the stomach and bowels, constipation, headache, dizziness, sleeplessness, and low spirits. Try the great remedy and be convinced of its merits. Get the genuine. Take only Kunkel's which is put up only in $1 bottles. Depot, 259 North Ninth St., Philadelphia. SELECT LIST

—OF—

LOCAL NEWSPAPERS

Many persons suppose this list to be composed of Cheap, low-priced newspapers. The fact is quite otherwise. The Catalogue states exactly what the papers are. When the name of a paper is printed in FULL FACE TYPE it is in every instance the BEST paper in the place. When printed in CAPITALS it is the ONLY paper in the place. When printed in roman letters it is neither the best nor the only paper, but is usually a very good one, notwithstanding. The list gives the population of every town, and the circulation of every paper. is not a CO-OPERATIVE LIST. It is not a CHEAP LIST. At the foot of the catalogue or each State the important towns which are not covered by the list are enumerated. It is an HONEST LIST. The rates charged for advertising are barely one-fifth the publisher's schedule. The price for one inch four weeks in the entire list is $635. The regular rates of the papers for the same space and time are $3,136 35. The list includes 970 newspapers, of which 163 are issued daily and 807 weekly. They are located in 825 different cities and towns, of which 22 are State Capitals, 328 places of over 5,000 population, and 444 County Seats. Lists sent on application. Address GEO. P. —The Womans' Foreign Missionary Society met last Friday evening at Mrs. Wilson's. There was a large attendance, and the meeting was made unusually interesting by remarks of Mrs. Roberts, late missionary to China. A letter was also read from Mrs. Butler, who is now in China.

OBITUARY.

ROLAND DYSART CURTIN.

Roland Dysart Curtin, fourth son of the late Roland Curtin, was born at Eagle Rolling Mill, Centre county, Pa., January 14, 1845, and died in Bellefonte, Centre county, Pa., Saturday, Sept. 6, 1879, at 4:14 P. M., aged 34 years, 7 months and 22 days.

He was taken sick Tuesday night, August 26, 1879, and kept growing worse until death ensued on the 6th of September. He suffered very much until a few hours before his death, when mortification beginning he was more easy. His death was peaceful, calm and quiet as the sleep of an infant. On Friday morning he said he was not afraid to die, that God would take care of him. His consciousness remained until some time on Saturday morning, after which time he did not notice much nor talk any. No one in the household will be missed as he will be—regular, methodical, kind, loving, quiet, good, careful, having few wants, no vices, fond of his family, his friendships strong; he scorned to do wrong; his utmost endeavor was to be in the right. He was a great comfort to his devoted mother; he was always at home, always cheerful, always obedient. His death will leave a void never again to be filled in the family circle. He had not been, since two or three years of age, strong in body, nor was he strong in mind; yet his usefulness has been and is being felt, and will redound to his honor. There are many to-day in the Centennial Temperance Club that will bear record to his usefulness. Nothing but sickness in bed would prevent his attendance at these meetings. In this, as in all else, he was conscientious as to his duty. It is a comfort to his family and friends to think and, in fact, to know that Jesus walked through the dark valley and shadow of death with him, and that His rod and staff comforted him. A.

Stase Fair at Philadelphia.

The State Fair of 1879, which commenced on Monday last, 8th inst., at Philadelphia, presents to its exhibitors an exhibition never before witnessed in this commonwealth, save only the ever-memorable event of the Centennial year.

The capacity of the Main Building, which our readers will recollect, covers more than twenty-two acres, together with the enclosed space adjacent, is filled with fine herds of cattle and horses the newest improvements in labor-saving machinery, fruits, flowers, and seeds in profusion, together with all the domestic manufactures, &c., which contribute so largely and effectually to displays of this character.

Among the exhibits which space enables us to numerate, is a large collection of thorough-bred and imported draught horses, fine bred horses of rare strains, including the celebrated Arabian stallions recently presented to General Grant by the Sultan of Turkey; a better variety of short-horn herds than ever congregated together in the United States heretofore, together with the most extensive display of fine bred Jersey and Guernsey cattle ever shown at any exhibition. To this is added a fine display of Ayrshire and Devon cattle, with a splendid show of fine long and middle-wooled sheep, choice varieties of Chester, Berkshire and Poland China swine, and all other live stock in proportion.

A prominent and interesting feature is a cheese and butter factory from Utica, N. Y., in practical operation, turning out each hour large quantities of the best and choicest products of the dairy. The extraordinary attraction has been secured by the managers at a cost of one thousand dollars.

The applications for motive-power to drive the machinery in motion have tested the ingenuity of the obliging managers, and the contributions of agricultural produce is simply immense. The Camden and Atlantic railroad show the products of the farm and gardens along her line, and the Vineland Society has postponed its annual exhibition and turned all its efforts in favor of the show at Philadelphia. Little Delaware sends rich supplies of her fruits to compete with the orchards of Pennsylvania. Indeed, the exhibition is rather an inter-State than a State affair, and the manufacturers of Philadelphia have found it out, and are at work in earnest.

—Col. Shortlidge is in receipt of a letter from the Pennsylvania railroad company, stating that a cheap excursion will be run from Altoona to Philadelphia, including all points on Middle and Tyrone divisions, sometime during the continuance of the State Fair. Due notice will be given.

The Printers' Gala Day.

The Juniata valley printers must surely have found favor with the gods, for they were granted a day perfect with radiant sunlight and balmy with autumn breezes, on which to hold the 2nd annual picnic of the association. Not frequently does so large an assembly gather at the half-past six train as did on the morning of the sixth—one might have thought every tenth man in Bellefonte a printer and that the other nine had come to see nine off. All found room, however, in the extra car which had been provided for the occasion.

At Tyrone the delegations from Clearfield and the eastern counties joined us, making up quite a large train, which reached Altoona in a short time. We said reached Altoona. We are sure of that, but so befuddled did our brains become with tracks and rails and bells and whistles during our residence in that city last Saturday morning, that we are not quite certain yet whether we didn't stay reached. We did not escape the usual fate of excursionists, but for nearly two long, hot, sweltering, crowding hours we sat in the cars, admiring the scenery immediately adjacent to the depot, waiting and longing for the good time coming and Cresson on ahead. It is astonishing how much of the aesthetic one can find in homely surroundings when it comes to the pinch, why the curved and twisted tracks began to suggest lines of beauty, and even a green grocer's sign became picturesque. The Altoona printers and their fair ones swooped down upon us like an avalanche, completely taking the train by storm. That the Altoona misses have decidedly taking ways, especially in the matter of seats and walking sticks, at least one of our townsmen will admit.

Finally, with patience nearly exhausted, we rolled away in fine style, our three iron steeds keeping pace to the stirring notes of the Altoona City Band, though heavily laden with twelve well-filled coaches.

To many, the ride from Altoona to Cresson, through scenery that has made the road famous, was the most enjoyable part of the day. When the train arrived the company, though numbering probably above 700, dispersed over the spacious grounds so widely that even that number appeared small. The band tried to keep our spirits up and our appetites down with their horns, but even this failed to quiet the people as the promised hour of half-past one approached. Many gathered around the dinning room doors, even pressing against them in their eagerness to partake of the feast within. When the doors were opened every seat in the large dinning hall, a capacity to seat 300, was almost instantly filled and refilled as soon as the first-comers said enough. From all accounts, Bellefonte claims to have been second to none in amply doing justice to the repast. We most patriotically served our town on this momentous occasion.

Mr. Unger made a most righteous reduction from his advertised prices, but evidently did not reduce the dinner accordingly; his bill of fare was quite mammoth. Whether he did this from humanitarian reasons, considering the habitual leanness of printers' purses, or was influenced by the blasts from several newspapers which raised their voices against the enormity of his propositions, we know not; but considering his hospitality and kindness to us all, we prefer to think the former.

The excursion to Ebensburg broke in upon the dinners of many, but from all accounts, it was worth leaving a few of "the loaves and fishes." The ride was most delightful, and when the little mountain town was reached, all formed in line and, headed by the band, marched gaily thro' the streets to the amusement, if not amazement of its usually stolid inhabitants. The absence of the band, however, very seriously interfered with the plans of those remaining at the Mountain House, who purposed indulging in the dance, for without it they were completely at loss for music in the hall used for dancing.

During the afternoon every one seemed to consider it his especial province to enjoy himself, and it was pretty thoroughly done, in the parlor, on the lawn, amidst the groves or beside the cooling, healing waters.

At three o'clock a business meeting was called by President Bowman, and after the report of a committee on resolutions and nominations, previously appointed, the annual election of officers was held, together with the adoption of usual resolutions and the constitution. The principal changes made were the addition of Indiana to the number of counties, and amending Art. 2d, so that the committee consists of a member from each county, instead five, as formerly. Major Forster was elected the member from this county. The resolutions regarding the Penn'a. R. R. Co., though very profuse, were none the less deserved, for to our knowledge, it is the only corporation in the country which, for as much as one day in the year, places its property at the disposal of the craft, to add to their enjoyment and happiness. Whatever may be the faults of this great company, it is not befitting for any member of the press in this region to be the first to cast a stone.

Prof. A. L. Guss' address, which followed, bore evidences of careful preparation, and was a most instructive and pleasing speech. It does little credit to the intellectuality of the printers present that day, for he had so few listeners. It is to be hoped that they will speedily make amends for their neglect by printing the address in type and giving it the circulation and the hearing that it deserves. Right in the midst of his best passages the excursionists from Ebensburg returned and caused such a commotion that it was almost impossible to retain a satisfactory audience afterward. As soon as he had finished, almost, the Centre county delegation had to leave for the train with numbers of others, and we soon were moving away from the scene of festivity.

That fault can be found and many improvements might be made we have no doubt. We were as sensible as anyone to the overcrowding of the cars, to the delays so unpleasant, to the unseasonable time for the Ebensburg Excursion, (which was unavoidable), to the lack of music for the would-be dances, and that many were there who had no claim upon the kindness of the railroad and hotel, yet the pleasant features by far outweighed unpleasant, and we believe that one and all had quite too enjoyable a day to mar its memories with useless fault finding.

Veteran Club Reunion.

A GALA DAY FOR PLEASANT GAP—THE TOWN THRONGED WITH VISITORS—GOOD ORDER AND GOOD FEELINGS—FULL REPORT OF THE PROCEEDINGS.

The Sixth Annual Reunion and Basket Picnic of the Veteran Club of Centre county, was held in Gettle's grove, Pleasant Gap, on Saturday, September 6th, 1879, and was more largely attended than any preceeding one, it being estimated that at least twenty-five hundred persons were upon the ground. The weather was all that could be desired. The exercises, though comparatively brief, were interesting, and the good order and cordial feeling which prevailed, would have reflected credit upon a religious instead of a merely social gathering. The picnic of the Veteran Club may now be regarded as one of the social institutions of Centre county.

The line was formed at the intersection of the Lewistown turnpike with the Hublersburg road about 10 A. M., when the procession moved at once along the turnpike toward the grove. A number of evergreen arches decorated with flags and appropriate inscriptions of welcome spanned the route at proper intervals. Delegations were in attendance from almost every part of the county—those from Center Hall, Lemont and Pine Grove Mills were accompanied by their respective brass bands, and the Bellefonte delegation was headed by the Zion Cornet Band. The Pleasant Gap band was also out in force and contributed much to the pleasure of the occasion and the comfort of their musical brethren.

Arriving at the speaker's stand about three-quarters of an hour were devoted to general greetings, and to music by the bands and a drum corps from Curtin's works with "Tine" Rumbarger, of the 148th, as fifer. At 11:15 A. M., President Beaver called the meeting to order, and prayer was offered by Rev. J. A. Wood, jr., Pastor of the M. E. Church. The address of welcome was delivered by Rev. Jacob Yutzy of the Lutheran church, and was responded to on behalf of the Club by the President. The minutes of last meeting were read and approved, and were followed by the "roll-call," an event which showed how fast the survivors of the late war are passing away—more than half a score of the members of the club having already gone to join their comrades, who fell during the war. At the conclusion of "roll-call" the following committies were announced, with instructions to report at the reassembling of the Club in the afternoon, viz:

On place of next meeting—Dr. Theo. S. Christ, of College; D. W. Kline, of Huston; Lt. Geo. M. Boal, of Potter; Geo. B. Jack, of Harris; Jno. R. Tate, of Spring; Capt. Christian Dale, of Benner; Major R. C. Cheesman, of Bellefonte; Marshall Cox, of Boggs; Geo. G. Tate, of Milesburg; Curtis De Haas, of Howard, and Benjamin Holton, of Howard Borough.

On nomination of officers for ensuing year—Col. James T. Stuart, of Harris; Capt. Wm. J. Thompson, of Potter; Geo. W. Miles, of Huston; W. C. Huey, of College; D. W. Miller, of Ferguson; Wm. A. Ishler, of Benner; Matthew Riddle, of Spring; Capt. H. H. Benner, of Bellefonte; W. B. Smith, of Howard; Jacob Schultz, of Boggs; Dr. Geo. F. Harris, of Bellefonte; Christian Swartz, of Walker; Dr. James A. Thompson, of Snow Shoe; Lieut. S. M. Spangler, Miles; Capt. S. H. Brunson, Marion; John A. Daley, Curtin.

At 12:30 a recess of two hours was announced.

Although the meeting had been announced as a basket picnic, the good people of Pleasant Gap and vicinity seemed to have made preparations to have entertained the entire assemblage. Nearly every resident of the neighborhood had provided a large and beatifully spread table, and the chief anxiety on the part of the hosts seemed to be to find a sufficient number of guests to share their hospitality. A number of the tables were handsomely decorated with beautiful epergnes of fruits and flowers and were spread with dinners that would have reflected credit upon a first-class hotel. We hope the kind hostesses were in a measure repaid for their labor by seeing how heartily their guests enjoyed themselves.

At 2:30 p. m. the meeting was again called to order. The report of the treasurer, Capt. Austin Curtin, who was detained by the illness of a brother (since deceased), was read by the secretary. The following is a synopsis:

Balance at last meeting	$ 90 11
Receipts at last meeting and since	46 50
Expenditures during year	21 55
Balance on hand Sept. 5, 1879	$115 06

The report of the committee on place of next meeting, fixing Unionville therefor, was read and adopted.

The committee on nomination of officers for the ensuing year submitted its report, which was unanimously agreed to. It is as follows, viz: President, Gen. James A. Beaver, of Bellefonte; Vice-President, Lieut. Geo. M. Boal, of Potter township; Secretary, D. S. Keller, Bellefonte; Treasurer, Capt. Austin Curtin, of Boggs, and as additional members of the Executive Committee, Maj. R. C. Cheesman, Bellefonte; W. B. Smith, Howard; George G. Tate, Milesburg; Capt. C. T. Fryberger, Philipsburg; Capt. W. C. Vanvalin, Unionville; William A. Ishler, Benner; Wm. A. Shultz, Boggs; John B. Newcomer, Burnside; Dr. Theo. S. Christ, College; John A. Daley, Curtin; David W. Miller, Ferguson; David Burrell, Gregg; Capt. O. W. Vanvalin, Haines; Simeon Sellers, Half Moon; Dr. John F. Woods, Harris; John B. Holter, Howard; D. W. Kline, Huston; John D. Thompson, Liberty; Capt. S. H. Bennison, Marion; Thomas E. Royer, Miles; Fabian Matts, Patton; Samuel D. Musser, Penn; Lieut. W. P. Shoop, Potter; Dr. James A. Thompson, Snow Shoe; Lieut. Abram V. Miller, Spring; Frederick Sensor, Union; Christian Swartz, Walker; S. S. Miles, Worth.

Gov. A. G. Curtin was then introduced, and though quite feeble in health, delivered some interesting remarks, congratulating the nation upon its deliverance from the evils of war and upon the era of prosperity upon which the people of the United States are entering. He was followed by Col. James Gilliland, formerly military agent at Washington for the State of Pennsylvania, whose kindness to Pennsylvania's soldiers and their anxious friends will long be gratefully remembered by the recipients. In concluding his remarks, the Colonel assured the boys that whatever he had been able to do for them had been gladly done, and that, he had done no more was because "red tape" had prevented him. President Beaver then introduced Mr. F. H. Allen, formerly of the 4th Wisconsin Infantry, but now chief of a section in the Invalid Division of the Pension Office, as a representative of what the community is accustomed to regard as "red tape," something which though an inconvenience individually, is nevertheless a necessity to us in our collective capacity. Judge Allen responded briefly in some appropriate remarks, his story about the letter from the bank cashier who insisted that while the "Black Tapir" abounded in Sumatra and other tropical regions the "Red Taper" was principally confined to the District of Columbia, creating much merriment. He also spoke very warmly of the hospitable treatment received by the regiment, of which he was a member, when marching to the front, at the hands of the citizens of Williamsport and Harrisburg, and assured the audience that in Wisconsin as well as in Pennsylvania Gov. Curtin was best known as the "Soldiers' friend."

The attention of members of the club and their citizen friends was called to the propriety and importance of securing complete lists of all deceased soldiers of the late war whose graves are not marked by headstones. It was urged that someone should undertake to secure a list for each township, and forward the same to the Secretary of the Club, who will then forward a consolidated list to the Quartermaster General, by whom the headstones will be provided. Suitable blanks will be furnished to any person willing to undertake the task of making a list of unmarked soldiers' graves in any township upon application to the Secretary.

Thanks were returned by the President to the citizens of Pleasant Gap and vicinity for their generous hospitality, to the local committees for the zealous and efficient manner in which they had performed their duties, to the musical organizations for their assistance, and to Mrs. Gettle, the owner of the grove, for her kindness in affording the Club its use. A vote of thanks was also tendered to Mr. Gotlieb Haag, proprietor of the Pleasant Gap Hotel, for his courtesy in closing his bar and declining to open it before 4 p. m., thereby contributing much to the good order and harmony which was so generally commented upon.

A little before 4 p. m., all business having been transacted, the Club adjourned to meet at Unionville, on Saturday, Sept. 12, 1880.

D. S. KELLER, Secretary.

THE VALUE OF PURE WINE IN SICKNESS.—The chief difficulty with reliable wines has been their scarcity and exorbitant price, but this has been removed by the introduction of a Pure Native Wine, produced from the Oporto Grape by Mr. Alfred Speer, of New Jersey. We understand that he has submitted his wine to the test of many of our celebrated physicians, and all concur in its purity, medicinal properties, and superiority to the best imported Port Wine. Most of them prescribe it in cases of debility, affections of the kidneys, and chronic complaints, requiring a tonic sudorific or diuretic treatment.—Examiner. For sale by J. W. Ziegler. 35 2

$35,000 for a Horse.

It having been announced by telegram from Hartford that the famous trotting horse Rarus had been sold to Mr. Z. E. Simmons, of New York, for thirty-six thousand dollars, a reporter of the Sun called on Mr. Simmons to inquire about the truthfulness of the report, when the following conversation took place:

Reporter—Mr. Simmons, is it true that you have bought Rarus?

Mr. Simmons—Yes, sir.

Reporter—Have you any objection to stating the price?

Mr. Simmons—not the least—thirty-six thousand dollars.

Reporter—May I ask why you did not allow Rarus to trot at Hartford yesterday?

Mr. Simmons—Simply because I was not present. I was not willing to let a horse of his value trot unless I was there to see him. I received a dispatch from the gentleman who bought him for me that he had bought the horse just before the race, and informed me that it was optional with me to have him trot or not. It was too late, of course, for me to go to Hartford then. Had there been time for me to go to Hardford I should have gone on, and let him trot under my own eye. As there was not, I preferred not to let him trot. Of course I had no contract or understanding with the Hartford people, or I should have kept it. They have no ground for any complaint against me.

The Coroner's jury in the case of George Trull, of Elizabeth, N. J., whose body was found in the water at New Haven, on Friday, returned a verdict of accidental drowning.

WHICH SHALL IT BE?

BY M. E. B.

A maiden fair of youthful bloom,
Sat alone in a pleasant room,

Sewing and singing the whole long day,
Radiantly happy, cheerful and gay.

But as she worked the sweet song died,
And deeply and long the maiden sighed.

And a bitter feeling of vague unrest,
And unbroken longing filled her breast.

But why should longing and why should care
Darken a life once bright and fair?

Listen to me and I'll tell to you
A story strange as it is true:

Of lovers faithless, false and gay,
She had her share I well may say.

Now o'er the spirit of her dream,
Strange and eventful as it may seem,

Had come another from Bedford town,
Fresh from its hill-slope looking down,

While a Unionville lad, of prospect dim,
Thought he'd try her hand to win.

One did his best at a tobacco stand,
The other at dry goods tried his hand;

One was tall, of manly form,
With principles of right and wrong.

The other was young, with a face more fair,
With a merry laugh and a jovial air.

Now to the maid the time had come,
Two were forbidden—she could have but one.

But which of the two? she thought again,
And the proud girl sighed with a secret pain.

Her mother had scolded o'er and o'er
And left her reflecting only the more.

She thought of the future, the present and past,
And the puzzled face grew bright at last.

She has decided—it must be done—
If she can't have both, she will have one.

The chap who walks the streets adown
Looking so gloomy and wearing a frown,

Is the one she jilted, I am told;
The other has tobacco and perhaps more gold

And straight to Bedford a letter went,
As though on a mission of mercy sent,

To tell Mr. M——r in language plain,
That T——r's loss would be his gain.

May they be happy in each other's love,
Their future bright as the sky above.

And for him who is so unhappy now,
May angels smooth the troubled brow,

And wreathe for him a gay and bright,
More radiant than the stars of night.

The Prince in a Drama.

Young Louis Napoleon Tragedy on the Boards of a German Theatre.

A drama entitled "The Prince Imperial!" is now playing at Posen, in Prussia. Scene I, is at Chiselhurst. The Prince is thinking of revenge. He talks of mitrailli uses of Forbach and the bullets that he picked up on the field of battle. What a chasm between yesterday and to-day. A Bonapartist delegation is announced. It comes to ask him to sail from France, and to issue a manifesto to the nation and an appeal to arms in his behalf. But the Prince, who loves his country, does not wish to excite civil war. He refuses.

Scene II.—The daughter of the forester. The Prince loves passionately a poor young girl. The Empress surprises him at a rendezvous. Pathetic scene between the mother and the son and the girl. The last-named at the prayer of the Empress, forbids the Prince to come again. The Prince, in despair, swears that he will go and kill himself.

Scene III. The English camp at the Cape. The Prince, more in love than ever, wishes to die. He asks the General to let him make a reconnoissance. Before mounting his horse he writes to his mother and the forester's daughter. (Tremolo accompaniment.)

Scene IV. The Zulus. The reconnoissance; the repose of the horseman; a soldier's song. All at once a cry "The Zulus!" The English save themselves (they are hooted at each night by the audience). The Prince defends himself courageously, thinking of his mother and of the forester's daughter. He dies.

Scene V.—The return to England. The Empress, in mourning, kneels before the picture of Napoleon III. The coffin is borne to Chiselhurst. (Grand scene of tears.) Suddenly enters the forester's daughter. "I promised your Majesty no more to see the Prince," she says. "I have kept my word. But your Majesty will not forbid me saying a last adieu to Louis?" The Empress draws the young girl to her heart, and replies: "Now we will unite in prayer!"

Scarcely have the Empress and the young girl bent their knees when the coffin, by the aid of mechanism like that in the nun scene in "Robert le Diable," stands up on end, and through the glass lid the audience sees the body of the Prince Imperial. This termination of the play produces a "grand emotional effect."—New York Evening Post.

Hard vs. Soft Water.

It may be pleasant to those who live in a region of our country where nothing but hard water is to be had, to be informed, by so good authority as Doctor Tidy, the well known Chemist, of the results of his observation on the use of hard water for culinary and domestic purposes;

1. Hard water is best dietetically, because of the lime.
2. It makes better tea, although not so dark colored, owing to the fact that the soft water dissolves the bitter extractive matters which color the tea, but ruins the aroma.
3. It relieves thirst, which soft water does not.
4. It does not dissolve lead or organic matter, which soft water does.
5. It is generally good colored, soft water being as a rule dark colored and unpleasant looking; hence in places supplied with soft water, they always put it (in hotels) in dark bottles to hide the color. A soft water, however, is a better detergent, and requires less soap. For a residential town a water which has over ten degrees of hardness would be best. For manufacturing towns a soft water would be the most advisable, for commercial considerations only.

——Zeb. Cuttle came into the village post-office the other day in a towering passion. He was literally boiling over with wrath.

"Where is the man?" he demanded, furiously. "Where is he? Show him to me!" And he turned up the cuffs of his coat-sleeves, and spit on his hands "I want to see the man!"

"What is it Zebulon!" asked a bystander.

"What is it! I should say it was enough! Somebody said 'at my father didn't know as much as old Squill's poodle dog! Where's Sam. Carter?"

"Here he comes."

"He!—Yes. Them words was spoke to him. Say, Sam! will you jest tell me who it was 'at told you 'at my father didn't know so much as old Squills's poodle dog?" And in Zeb's flashing eyes and clinched fists lurked destruction dire and dreadful.

"Sartain'," said Sam. "It was Tom Waterford. Aye—and here he comes."

At that moment Tom Waterford entered the office—a youthful Hercules, standing six feet in his stockings, and built like a Taurine chief. Zeb looked at him and gasped But he had gone too far in the presence of the assembly to back down now; so, with bold front, though a close observer could have detected a paleness of the lips, he went up to the new-comer, and demanded:

"Tom Waterford, did you say 'at my father didn't know so much as old Squills's poodle dog?"

"No, Zeb," returned Tom, with a broad grin. "You've got it mixed. What I said was this: I said that old Squill's's poodle dog knew more'n your father knew!"

"Ah—O!—Ahs!—that makes a difference, I swear, Tom! I'm glad you didn't say it that other way, 'cause if I had, by Jimmy! I should 'a been mad!"

A dead African eagle was lately found at Maina, on the southern Greek coast. On examing the bird an iron-headed arrow over a foot long was found transfixed under one of the wings. Evidently the eagle had been fired at and struck in Africa by some native, and had borne the arrow in its body in its long flight over the Mediterranean until it fell dead from exhaustion on touching land at Maine.

Rules and Regulations.

1. Entries may be made at any time before the Fair, by addressing the Secretary; and it is earnestly requested that all who can do so will make their entries the week before the fair.

2. Parties making entries by letter must give full particulars, if of stock, as to name and age, and if thoroughbred, pedigree.

3. All live stock for exhibition must be entered and on the exhibition ground before noon on Wednesday. At 12 m. the books will be closed and no more entries will be made.

4. Exhibitors will receive a card for each article entered, designating the class and number of the entry, which must be attached to the article. No animal without a card attached can be in the stalls without the consent of the Superintendent in charge of the Stock Department. Nor can the Society assure any exhibitor who neglects this requirement that they will be passed upon by the judges. In justice to those who comply with the rules of the Society, they shall in all cases first receive attention.

5. Articles entered for exhibition must not be removed before 3 p. m. on Thursday. A violation of this rule will forfeit any premium which may have been awarded the article or animal prematurely removed.

6. Persons wishing to exhibit articles or animals for which no premiums are offered are cordially invited to do so. All meritorious exhibitions thus made will receive such premiums as a Special Committee may award and the Executive Committee may approve.

7. No single animal or article shall, as such, receive more than one premium—provided that an animal or article which has been awarded a single premium may also form part of a herd or collection to which a premium is awarded.

8. The Society will furnish hay and straw free of charge, and watchmen will be upon the ground both day and night to care for and attend to the feeding of the stock; but persons exhibiting large numbers of stock may, if they desire, each send therewith an attendant, who will be furnished with a pass upon application by the owner to the President.

9. The Executive Committee may revise the premiums awarded at any regularly called meeting, and, at its discretion, alter, amend or reverse the award of the judges.

10. All horses on exhibition must be exhibited at their posts at the hour fixed therefor, of which due notice will be given from the judges' stand. Those not at their posts will not be examined by the judges.

11. All animals in classes 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12 must be shown on the track, at an hour to be announced from the judges' stand. Those not exhibited will not be examined.

12. Premiums not called for within 60 days after the Fair will be considered as having been donated to the Society.

13. Betting and wagering upon the Society Grounds are strictly forbidden.

14. The right of establishing any Rules and Regulations in regard to trials of speed which the Superintendent of the Department of Amusements may deem necessary or proper, is reserved.

15. No charge will be made for entering animals or articles for exhibition—such exhibition being absolutely free to the world.

NOTE.—The Society invite, in addition to the Farming Community, the Merchants, Manufacturers, and the various Trades and Professions in the county, to place upon exhibition such goods, wares, and other evidences of their occupation and skill as they may deem worthy of exhibition, and as will give the citizens of the county information in regard to their peculiar occupations and business. All such exhibitors are permitted to erect cases and counters in which to display their exhibits, and to sell upon the grounds at all times during the Fair, by sample, pattern or actual delivery, provided the exhibit be kept full by the addition of articles replacing those sold. Exhibitors are requested to apply at once to the Secretary or Executive Committee for space upon the grounds and in the buildings.

Auction.

There will be an auction sale of stock on the last day of the Fair. Those desiring to sell will please notify the Secretary as to the kind of stock and number, prior to the day of sale. The auctioneer will be paid by the Society.

Instructions to Members of Committees.

All members of Committees will report at the President's room at 10 o'clock on Thursday morning, October 2nd. After filling vacancies the books will be placed in their hands, and they will immediately proceed to business. Their reports must be handed to the Secretary not later than 3 p. m. of Thursday. The reports will be read from the main stand on Friday morning at 11 o'clock.

No person can act as judge in a class in which he is an exhibitor.

An article or animal having no competition shall not in all cases be entitled to a first premium, but may receive such a premium as in the judgment of the committee its merits warrant.

Should any doubt arise as to the regularity of an entry, or concerning any other important matter which the committee of judges feel unauthorized to decide, they will at once report the same to the Superintendent of the proper department.

Any improper interference with the duties of the committees will be promptly reported to the Superintendent of the department, and if by an exhibitor, the premium may be withheld for this reason.

There will be a committee of three judges for each class.

Each judge as named below is chairman of his committee, and is authorized to appoint two assistants, and report such appointments, with their acceptance, to the Secretary of the Society before September 22d. It is recommended that such assistants be appointed from young men who are active, intelligent farmers. All such members of committees (not being members of the Society) will be furnished with free cards of admission—good for one day only—on presenting to the Secretary a written certificate of their appointment as such, signed by the Chairman of the Committee by whom appointed.

BOOKS FOR THE MILLION

WOMAN AND MARRIAGE

A large, new and complete Guide to Wedlock, containing, with many others, the following chapters: A competent Womanhood, Selection of Wife, Evidences of Virginity, Temperaments, Compatible and Incompatible, Sterility in women, cause and treatment, Advice to Bridegroom, Advice to Husbands, Advice to Wives, Prostitution, its causes, Celibacy and Matrimony compared, Conjugal duties, Conception, Confinement, Love and Courtship, Impediments to Marriage, in male and female, Science of Reproduction, Single life considered, Law of Marriage, Law of Divorce, Legal rights of married women, etc., including Diseases peculiar to Women, their cause and treatment. A book for private and considerate reading, of 320 pages, with full Plate Engravings, by mail, sealed, for 50 cents.

"The Private Medical Adviser" on Syphilis, Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Stricture, Varicocele, etc., also on Spermatorrhœa, Sexual Debility, and Impotency, from Self-abuse and Excesses, causing Seminal Emissions, Nervousness, Aversion to Society, Confusion of Ideas, Physical decay, Dimness of sight, Defective Memory, Loss of Sexual Power, etc., making marriage improper or unhappy, giving treatment, and a great many valuable receipts for the cure of all private diseases; same size, over 50 plates, 50 cents.

"Medical Advice," a lecture on Manhood and Womanhood, 10 cents; or all three in one nicely bound volume, $1. They contain 600 pages and over 100 illustrations, embracing everything on the generative system that is worth knowing, and much that is not published in any other work. The combined volume is positively the best Popular Medical Book published, and those dissatisfied after getting it, can have their money refunded. The Author is an experienced physician of many years' practice, (as is well known,) and the advice given, and Rules for treatment laid down, will be found of great value to those suffering from impurities of the system, early errors, lost vigor, or any of the numerous troubles coming under the head of "Private" or "Chronic" Diseases. Sent in single volumes, or complete in one, for Price in stamps, Silver or Currency. (Consultation confidential, and letters are promptly and frankly answered without charge.) PROF. HARRIS' RADICAL CURE FOR SPERMATORRHŒA.

"SEMINAL PASTILLE."

A Valuable Discovery and New Departure in Medical Science, an entirely New and positively effective Remedy for the speedy and permanent Cure of Seminal Emissions and Impotency by the only true way, viz: Direct Application to the principal Seat of the Disease, acting by Absorption, and carrying its specific influence on the Seminal Vesicles, Ejaculatory Ducts, Prostate Gland and Urethra. The use of the Remedy is attended with no pain or inconvenience, it is quickly absorbed and soon absorbed, producing an immediate soothing and restorative effect upon the sexual and nervous organizations wrecked from self-abuse and excesses, stopping the drain from the system, restoring the mind to health and sound memory, removing the Dimness of Sight, Nervous Debility, Confusion of Ideas, Aversion to Society, etc. etc., and the appearance of premature old age usually accompanying this trouble, and restoring perfect Sexual Vigor, where it has been dormant for years. This mode of treatment has stood the test in very severe cases, and is now a pronounced success. Drugs are too much prescribed in these troubles, and, as many can bear witness to, with but little, if any permanent good. There is no nonsense about this preparation. Practical observation enables us to positively guarantee that it will give satisfaction.—During the eight years that it has been in general use, we have thousands of testimonials as to its value, and it is now conceded by the Medical Profession to be the most rational means yet discovered, of reaching and curing this very prevalent trouble, that is well known to be the cause of untold misery to so many, and upon whom quacks prey with their useless nostrums and big lies. The Remedy is put up in a neat box, enough to last a month, and sent in a plain wrapper by mail, sealed, for $3.—Two boxes (sufficient to effect a permanent cure unless in severe cases), $5—Three boxes lasting three full months, (will stop evil dreams and restore vigor, in the worst cases,) $7.—Full DIRECTIONS for using will accompany EACH BOX.

Send for a Descriptive Pamphlet, giving Anatomical Illustrations, which will convince the most sceptical that they can be restored to perfect manhood, and fitted for the duties of life, as if never affected. Sent Sealed for stamp to any one. Sold ONLY by the

MANHOOD:

How Lost, How Restored.

Just Published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure (without medicine) of SPERMATORRHŒA, or Seminal Weakness Involuntary Seminal Losses, IMPOTENCY, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage etc; also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits; Induced by Self indulgence or sexual extravagance, &c.

☞Price, in a sealed envelope, only six cents.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice that the alarming consequences of Self-abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞This lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Sent, under seal, in a plain envelope, to any address, postpaid, on receipt of six cents, or two postage stamps.

Local Department.

– Monday was a cool, raw day.

—Things were lively on Saturday.

—The Sunday-school picnic season is about over.

—They tell a good rat story on Tom. Reynolds.

—What has become of Bellefonte's Murphy meetings.

—We haven't heard a good snake story for some time.

—The thunder storm on Sunday night was greatly needed.

—Logan picnic next Friday at Valentines' grove, near toll gate.

—Rogers' pavilion show will pitch its tents in Milesburg on Friday.

—Go and get a cigar of Harry Green if you want a good, solid smoke.

—Judge Mayor, of Lock Haven, presided over the Court last week.

—The Rev. Joseph Cook will lecture in Altoona some time in October.

—Bellefonte was shrouded in September fogs one or two nights of last week.

—Every Republican in the county should be a subscriber to the REPUBLICAN.

—A few weeks longer now and stove funnels will receive their annual cussin'!

—Over two hundred buildings are being erected in Altoona, says the Tribune.

—Mr. Sam. Dawson, formerly of this place, now bakes bread for Johnstown people.

– The next meeting of the Veteran Club of Centre county will be held at Unionville.

—If the evenings continue to grow cooler it will shortly be in order to invest in a fall overcoat.

—T. R. Reynolds & Co. are putting in a new water wheel. Mr. Sayer, of Milroy, is doing the work.

– Jersey Shore had four weddings in one day last week. Who ever heard of such recklessness?

—The Bellefonte academy opened last Thursday for the season under very favorable circumstances.

—Hollidaysburg has an old reservoir which is used for boat-rowing by the young folks of that burg.

—A party of ladies and gentlemen from Snow Shoe visited the Pennsvalley cave on Thursday last.

—J. W. McDivitt, Esq., a prominent attorney of Sunbury, was in town last week attending court.

—The regular monthly meeting of the Y. M. C. A. was held at their rooms on last Sunday afternoon.

—Rev. Laurie has returned from his visit to the sea shore, and greeted his congregation on Sunday morning.

—Isaac Guggenheimer has put up a new and handsome sign, of the shield pattern, at his establishment on High street.

—Webster T. Bair, late of the defunct Mount Union Times, has accepted a position on the Philipsburg Journal.

—The race was drawn off last Thursday, and the boys and their dip nets immediately came out in full force.

—The evening passenger train from Tyrone was three hours late last Wednesday night. The engine gave out at Julian.

—Mr. John Decker, of Hublersburg, looked in upon us on Friday. Mr. D. reports matters rather quiet at Hublersburg.

—That Clearfield band, with a delegation of Clearfield veterans, weren't here on Saturday. At least, we didn't see anything of them.

—Mr. Lew Schaffer, formerly of this place, and a graduate of Lock Haven Normal school, will teach a school at Nittany Hall this fall.

—The Zion cornet band, which headed the Zion and Bellefonte delegation to the Veteran's picnic, won a good reputation by its excellent playing.

—A complimentary ticket to attend the printer's picnic was sent to Wm. P. Elliott, Esq., the oldest printer in the Juniata valley, and probably the State.

—The premium list of Centre County Fair will be found on the inside of this issue. Don't fail to read it. A great many valuable premiums are offered.

—The new sign at the entrance of Sechler's meat market, in yellow and blue, is, without doubt, the grandest and most attractive of any sign in the county.

Our Public Schools.

We stated last week that Hon. Mason Duncan, Esq. had accepted the position as assistant principal of the public schools. In this Mr. Heinle, secretary of the board, informs us that we were mistaken, Mr. Duncan's engagement being as a special teacher. His duties will be to teach English literature, history of the United States, general history, English and Latin grammar, etc. This is an advance step, and should meet the approbation of every citizen in favor of public education. The Watchman takes exceptions to it, of course. If the editor of that paper would be consistent and lay off his mask by informing his readers that he is opposed to public schools in toto, the gist of his objections to the engagement of ten teachers for nine schools would be much better understood. The first and second grades of our public schools average from seventy to seventy-five scholars, who in point of intelligence are about equal to those in attendance at the academies and seminaries of the State. We now have an academical catalogue before us which shows an average attendance of eighty to ninety scholars, which employs four regular and six special teachers, making an average of six teachers employed during the school hours or time of recitation. As Mr. Duncan is only employed half his time, and the principal has to spend a portion of his time with the subordinate or primary schools, the first and second grades will only have the benefit of two teachers during school hours under the present arrangement—that is, the three teachers can only average two teachers in the first and second grades, owing to the attention required from the principal in the other schools.

Instead of ten teachers, there is room for at least fourteen teachers. There should be a teacher of chemistry and philosophy, with necessary apparatus, which would cost about one hundred dollars, a teacher of music and a teacher of penmanship. Penmanship is one of the essential branches of an ordinary English education, yet we are constrained to say it has been very indifferently taught in our public schools. The reason is that it is a distinct profession, which has not been properly considered by the board of public education. We will have more to say on this subject. In the meantime we invite the Watchman to lay off its mask and assume the garb of its true inwardness so that the people may know that it is not only opposed to an increase of teachers, but opposed to public schools.

—The Centre Reporter gives the following item of real estate news: The Duck real estate in Brush Valley was knocked off last Thursday at public sale as follows: The old homestead, 128 acres, to Amos Ziegler at $2,113.33; that known as the old Peter Ziegler farm, 162 acres at $7,249; the tract of 26 acres at $661.25; a timber tract in little Sugar valley, 84 acres, to F. Weaver at 625; a 26 acre tract of mountain land to J. H. Reifsnyder at three dollars.

—The Brattleboro (Mass.) Record, in a recent issue, was somewhat mixed in its make-up. For instance, two items appeared as follows: "A large bear went into the pasture of inst., and by some casuality the boat sunk and he was drowned. * * * Aaron Low, on a recent morning, attacked a calf and drew it some distance into the woods, but was frightened away before eating it."

—Mr. Robert McCalmont, of Walker township, lost a valuable horse a few days since. The horse had been at work in the field, and showed no signs of being unwell, but upon removing the harness at the stable, it dropped dead. An examination of the animal was made, which disclosed the fact that the lungs were entirely gone.

—The green grocery store, recently opened in McClain's block by two young men, was a very short-lived concern. The proprietors kept open long enough to dispose of a load of watermelons, and then shut up shop. Gone to meet the ninty-nine cent store.

—Johnstown, Rochester, and two or three other towns and cities are going to have new depots. Just wait till our railroad gets built to Lemont, then we'll show these stuck-up towns what a depots is—perhaps.

—Of course the good times are coming. Last week twelve window glass factories started up in Pittsburgh, and crowds of people are laying in a supply of goods from Sechler's grocery store.

—The printers' picnic is over. Next comes the picnic of the operators of the middle division of the Pennsylvania railroad, which will be held at Lloydsville on Thursday, September 18th.

—The town is somewhat quiet now that court is over.

A Soldier's Sad Fate.

The Altoona Tribune relates the following of William Boydley, of Sinking Valley, who was recently removed to the county almshouse from the State Asylum at Harrisburg:

"He was a soldier of the late war, and came out of it unscratched and with a brilliant record. He was in forty-eight hard fought battles, and was twice a prisoner in the hands of the enemy. His insanity partakes of the simple rather than the demonstrative, and manifests itself in the direction of personal cleanliness. He will wash, dress and comb his hair innumerable times during the day if permitted. He has hardly completed his ablution until he repeats the operation. He can do a right good job of work, but his mental deficiency has told on his physical strength, and in consequence cannot labor long at a time. If not watched he will forget what he has been set to do and will leave his work. An effort is being made to have him transferred to the Soldiers' Home, at Dayton, Ohio, which will doubtless be successful. The unfortunate condition of so brave a soldier is to be pitied, in that having escaped so many perils on bloody battle-fields, at last to fall a victim to insanity."

—The picnic of the Logan Fire Company, announced last week, will surely take place on next Friday, at Valentines' grove, near the toll gate, unless prevented by rain, and promises to be largely attended. There will be a firemen's parade in the morning at ten o'clock, headed by the Bellefonte band, after which the company will march to the grounds and proceed with the festivities of the day, consisting of a grand dinner, tub race, dancing, etc. A good time generally is in store for all those who attend.

—Martin Turner, who was tried and convicted about a year ago in the Clearfield county court for the shooting of Mr. Waple, near Wallacetown, has had a new trial granted him by the Supreme Court, and a charge of venue by our court. Mr. Turner, with his attorney, Senator Wallace, and about one hundred witnesses, passed through here on Monday morning en-route for Lock Haven, where the second trial is to take place this week.

—The dwelling house of Mr. Daniel McBride, situated about five miles from State College, together with the furniture it contained, was considerably damaged by fire on the afternoon of August 29th. A lump of coal from the stove grate is supposed to have been the cause. The loss is covered by insurance.

—Mr. John Holmes, of this place, presented us with a neatly-made match holder, the other day, a specimen of his own workmanship. He also showed us a very pretty clock-case, of mahogany, also of his own manufacture, on which there is some fine work, and shows considerable skill at wood-carving.

—Mr. H. G. Tillinghast, assistant department inspector, department of Pennsylvania, G. A. R., inspected Gregg Post, No. 95, on Wednesday evening last. Mr. Tillinghast is a competent and faithful officer, and has inspected some of the highest standing and oldest posts in the country.

—The proposition of D. G. Bush, to furnish the borough a water power for $6,000, payable in six annual payments, without interest, has been accepted by Town Council, provided Mr. Bush will give satisfactory guarantee that he can provide the amount of water power stated in his proposition.

—It is reported, by pretty good authority, that a panther is roaming about on the Muncy mountains, between this place and Mt. Eagle. He has been living in this locality several weeks, and has been heard two or three times within the past week. Up and at him, ye bold hunters.

—An exchange says an old letter, containing a five dollar bill on the bank of Hagerstown, an English shilling and a copper cent was recently discovered among the musty documents in the Columbia county prothonotary's office. It had been there for twenty-three years.

—Mr. Hoppes, the popular proprietor of the Bush House, who has been confined to his room for several weeks, is about again, and will soon be able to again superintend matters at the Bush.

—Mr. Henry Harris accidentally fell through the flooring at the planing mill, Saturday morning, and injured his left leg severely below the knee. He is able to move about slowly with the aid of a cane.

—The Blair county Radical is considerably improved in appearance by new type.

Tribute of Respect.

At a meeting of the Centennial Temperance Club, held at their hall in this place, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, It has pleased God to remove from our numbers our late member and co-worker, R. D. Curtin,

Resolved, That in his death the family has lost a kind son and brother, and the temperance cause, for which he labored so earnestly, one of its best advocates; and

Resolved, That our hall be draped in mourning for the unexpired year, and the members wear their badges for the space of thirty days; and

Resolved, That we deeply sympathize with the family of our deceased brother, and tender them our sincere condolence in their great bereavement; and

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased, and that they be published in the REPUBLICAN, Centre Democrat and Watchman.

A. MORRISON,
E. A. SMITH.

—Last week's Watchman contained the following astonishing item:

Mr. Noah Musser brought into our sanctum yesterday two turkey eggs that were laid by a hen hatched last May.

Now, if Noah Musser owns a hen that lays turkey's eggs he's got a "bonanza" sure, but its a bad joke on the turkeys. It is also a violation of the laws of nature, and that hen ought to be impeached.

—The Clipper, of New York, probably the best sporting journal in the country, published in its last issue an excellent likeness of Monte Ward, of this place, who has became famous in base-ball circles as a curve pitcher. He is now with the league Providence club, which leads in the race for the championship.

—The Williamsport Breakfast Table, which dishes up a healthy lunch to Williamsporters on Sunday mornings, will please consider our hat elevated for the following: "The Bellefonte Republican is one of the brightest weeklies published in the State, and is a welcome visitor to this office."

—Billy Jones liberated a number of rats on the Diamond Saturday morning, which caused considerable sport. A large crowd collected around the trap, and when the rats and the dogs and the spectators got to work the performance would put to shame the best circus traveling.

—Mr. John Getz, of Lemont, who took unto himself a better half some time ago, was in town on Monday, but as usual, was full of business, and didn't have much time to discuss matters. John is looking first-rate, and says his married life goes smoothly on.

—It's a good time to hunt coons now. This reminds us that we heard of a College township man who went coon-hunting, on Monday night, and got hunted himself. You see, he had occasion to go through a man's peach orchard—"of course after the coon."

—We were presented, the other day, with a very pretty paper-weight, made from Tennessee marble, by Mr. Cyrus Hunter, of Stormstown. Mr. Hunter is a first-class workman and an accommodating gentleman, and has built up a large business.

—Some of the "Veterans" began to celebrate early on Saturday. A two-horse wagon load came into town about seven o'clock so full of "patriotism" they couldn't tell a picnic from a prayer-meeting.

—The editor of the Huntingdon Journal has been fleeced long enough, and goes for the man who hangs around the door on publication day waiting for the press to start.

—An advertiser in one one of our exchanges says: "Look out for counterfeit pearl shirts" Yes, watch out, if you don't want to get a galvanized tin shirt palmed off on you.

—Rev. Dr. Wolfe, of the Theological Seminary, at Gettysburg, occupied the pulpit of the Lutheran church, at Rebersburg, on Sunday before last.

—The editor of the Hollidaysburg Register is glad that banged hair is going out of fashion. We'd like to know what difference it makes to him.

—Messrs. W. A. Tobias, Harvey Benner, William Schroyer and Wm. H. Miller have all been admitted to the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows.

—Mr. Samuel Fainn, of Centre Hall, who has been living in the oil regions for some time, returned home a few days since sick with fever.

—Some mastodon bones have been unearthed at Wellsboro, and a professor has been up there looking them over.

—Henry Boozer has sold out the mail and stage route between Centre Hall and Spring Mills to Jacob Dinges.

—Among the items in the Court proceedings published last week was one stating that certain charges existed against Washington Johnson, a colored citizen of Spring township, who, according to the records of the Court, had forfeited his recognizance, which we interpreted that he "had skipped," and left his bail to respond at the late term of Court. Washington has called on us to inform us that he "didn't skip," and would be on hand, when required, to meet his accusers and abide the result. On investigation we found that we were mistaken; that it is the custom of the Court in the particular cases with which he was charged, to take bail and forfeit recognizance, which will be respited at the succeeding Court if the defendant responds.

—An exchange relates the following in regard to peaches, which may not be generally known: The peach kernels contain a deadly poison called hydrocynic acid, of which two-thirds of a grain has often proved fatal. Parents should be careful not to allow their children to eat them—we mean the kernels. Should any sickness occur from eating peach or other kernels, it is well to remember that ammonia is one of the best antidotes. The patient should be made to inhale all he can, and a few drops, diluted with four or five times its bulk of water, should be given internally.

—Among the passengers on the train which left Bellefonte to-day was that popular clothier, J. Newman, Jr., who has gone to the city to purchase his fall stock of clothing, which will comprise dress goods, every-day wear, underclothing and gents' furnishing goods generally. Mr. Newman will remain in the city several days, and while there will thoroughly acquaint himself with all the latest styles. Don't fail to visit the Eagle Clothing Hall on his return, and see the grand opening.

—The Snow Shoe R. R. Company is one of the most accommodating roads in this or any other country. The up train to Snow Shoe was held nearly half an hour over running time last Thursday evening for a party of Snow Shoe excursionists, who had been looking at the sights in Pennsvalley, and were a little late in getting back.

—A caravan of vehicles, enroute to the Veterans' picnic on Saturday, formed on the Diamond, with the Zion band at the head, and was escorted to the grove by Surgeon Harris and Lieut. Williams, with bands playing and flags thrown to the breeze.

—The School Board of our borough held a meeting on Saturday evening and adopted Watson's independent series of readers and spellers. Those having old readers can exchange them for new ones without any additional expense.

—The Patrons of Husbandry of Centre county will hold their sixth annual picnic on the top of Nittany mountain, on Thursday, the 25th of September. Great preparations are being made to make it pleasant and entertaining for all.

—Miss Margaret Shaffer, daughter of ex-Sheriff Shaffer, of Nittany Hall, who has been spending the summer months at home, has returned to Lutherville, where she is receiving instructions at the Female Seminary at that place.

—Carpenters in the employ of the Pennsylvania railroad have been at work during the past week building a platform for the storage of oil in the rear of the depot. Some repairs have also been made about the depot.

—The large saw mill of E. M. Sturdevant & Co., of Beaver Mills, was burned week before last, together with a large lot of lumber and shingles. Both the mill and lumber was insured.

—Company B, 5th Regiment N. G., of Penn'a., left yesterday for Braddock's Station, near Pittsburgh, where the Fourth Brigade of the National Guard will be encamped for several days.

—The editor of the Carlisle Mirror is said to be something of a shootist. He carried off the prize for the best shot at a picnic recently held by Co. G, of Carlisle. We'll bet it was an accident, though.

—We don't exactly understand how a man could easily run a pick axe into his eye, yet, according to the Democrat, this is what happened to Mr. Thomas Homan, of Walker township.

—The boys' afternoon picnic at the depot, when the beer kegs arrive, is getting to be largely attended.

—Mr. Daniel Smith, of Centre Hall, has begun the erection of a new domicile.

—On the 20th day of August, 1879, Amos E. Garbrick, of this place, received an injury to the second finger of his right hand by the falling of a cutting-box knife thereon. Said injury caused Amos some trouble for eight days, but he having an accident policy in the Knickerbocker Casualty Insurance Co., of N. Y., for $500 weekly indemnity received $5.71 for the eight days disability, said policy having cost him $4.50 for one year. The Knickerbocker Casualty Insurance Company of New York, is represented by W. B. Rankin of this place, from whom can be procured accident policies from one day to one year at moderate rates.

—We are agents for Sawyer's Woolen Mills; and also for Kipper's foreign woolens. The finest fabrics. All wool suits to order, Twelve and one-half Dollars.
2tf MONTGOMERY & Co., Tailors.

—We have received complimentary tickets to the Lycoming and Clinton county Fair, to be held at Jersey Shore, commencing September 17th, for which the committee will please accept our thanks.

—Four rooms and one dwelling house with eight rooms, on Lamb street, for rent at reasonable rates. Inquire of William Jones, ag't, 1st National Bank. 16 tf

—A raid was made on Brown's cabbage patch one night last week. The thief is known, and if he doesn't walk pretty straight something will happen to him.

—The Clearfield Times says: "The farmers of Centre county will hold a fair this fall. The farmers of that county know how to get up a fair."

—The second quarterly meeting for Pennsvalley Methodist circuit was held at Sprucetown church on last Saturday and Sunday.

—The Juniata District Sunday-school convention, Evangelical, will be held in Millheim, September 9th, 10th and 11th.

—A full account of the Veteran Club reunion and picnic will be found in another column.

—Pine Grove camp-meeting commences to-morrow.

WINE FOR SICKLY PERSONS.—Speer's Port Grape Wine is unexcelled by any other in its mellow juciness, richness of flavor and brilliancy of color. Physicians say it is superior to imported port for invalids, and in summer it is more agreeable and refreshing than claret. Clergymen use it, for its purity, as a communion wine. This wine is well known, and highly appreciated by weakly females and aged persons, and for communion. 33-2t
